

ISU Norway Establishes 6 new Local Branches

Between April and October 2011, ISU Norway has made giant strides in expanding the local base of Norway's Union of International Students studying in various universities and colleges across the country. For the first time since its inception, ISU has opened 6 new local branches in a period of about three months including one merger where a new local branch was merged with an existing one as a result of the two institutions becoming one. This has increased the total number of local branches from 13 to 19 since the last NA in Trondheim. ISU last established a local branch in 2008 (ISU Agder). The successful formation of 6 local branches in three months is a remarkable achievement, which re-affirms the strength of our commitment to service. We are proud of this achievement and thank all parent institution of the new local branches for their cooperation and support.

The new local branches include; ISU OIBC (Oslo International Bible College), ISU AHO (Oslo School of Architecture and Design), ISU HiOF (Østfold University College), ISU NVH (Norwegian School of Veterinary Science), ISU HiNT (North-Trøndelag University College) and ISU HLT (Norwegian School of Leadership and Theology). The would be 7th Branch was merged with ISU at Oslo University College to form ISU HiOA (Akershus Oslo and Akershus University College of Applied Sciences) in response to the merger of the college with Oslo University College.
